

2018 PRECONFERENCE TRAINING Problem Solving in the Young Working Dog

Friday, April 20, 2018
7:30a - 3:00p

Penn Vet Working Dog Center (transportation from hotel not provided)

The 2018 Penn Vet Working Dog Conference will explore the many stages of creating a working dog, from breeding to job-specific canine selection. Throughout this process there will be moments when a trainer's problem-solving skills are called upon to address a particular training challenge.

How a dog is taught to work through these critical times can often influence the dog's life-long problem-solving abilities and future success in their field.

This unique workshop offers selected participants and their dogs the opportunity to learn the problem-solving methods employed by the Penn Vet Working Dog Center Training Team. This format will include demonstrations and working spots and is designed to allow interactive learning opportunities for handlers and auditors.

Who should attend?

This workshop offers the opportunity for all skill levels and is ideal for those who are open to learning and interested in expanding their library of training techniques.

Audit Spot (no dog) - $75

Working Spot (by application only) - $250
